

10:30 to 11:30 a.m. — Wednesday, March 31, 2010

Gangs: What you should know, Part one

Today more than ever, we cannot deny the presence of gangs in our communities. It is imperative that we learn what our children already know. The speaker has 20 years of experience working directly with street gangs, law enforcement, courts and service providers.

She will provide an understanding of the process she used to work with this population.

Attendees will be able to describe gang history, current gang concerns, major gangs and levels of violence; differentiate between gang colors, graffiti interpretation and gang mentality; and identify strategies for managing gangs in school settings. This is part one of two sessions.

Presented by Linda Schmidt, instructor, Private Consultant

Notes:

Action items: