

Jim Wyse

Regional Business Development Manager

Jim Wyse is the regional business development manager for Northwestern Ohio. He serves as an ambassador for Administrator/CEO Sarah Morrison communicating BWC services to Ohio employers. He also works with employers that could benefit from BWC's safety and claims management services.

Jim has more than 30 years experience in both the public and private sectors. His business background includes more than 29 years in the insurance business, first owning his own agency until 2004. After selling his agency, Jim continued to work for the firm that purchased his business until joining BWC in July 2012.

His public service record includes more than 12 years experience serving his community as a village council member and mayor. He also serves as president of the local Community Improvement Corp, which serves as the economic development arm in his hometown of Archbold, Ohio.

Jim's economic development efforts resulted in him being named the Archbold Citizen of the Year in 2008. He has served on the Fulton County EMA Board and the 9-1-1 Advisory Board. Jim is also active in his church as well as the board of directors for a local hospital and the Fulton County Senior Center Advisory Board. In his personal time he has volunteered as a baseball coach for more than 20 years. A member of Archbold Rotary, with 19 years of perfect attendance, Jim is a past-president and Paul Harris Fellow. Jim lives in Archbold with his wife, Janet. They have two daughters, two sons and one granddaughter.
