

9:15 to 10:15 a.m. — Thursday, April 1, 2010

Chemical principles through demonstration

Understanding chemistry and chemical principles can be made easy, fun and entertaining by viewing live demonstrations. This session is designed for teachers, trainers or instructors who need some creative ideas for demonstrations. Attendees will be able to demonstrate chemical principles, identify the equipment involved in the demonstrations, and explain safe and effective ways to have a demonstration.

Presented by Mary Bailey, former lab demonstrator, Ohio State University, Department of Chemistry

Notes:

Action items: